Gratitude

It has been an honor for the city of Mollet del Vallès to celebrate the III International Congress of Professionals for Road Safety and Education (CIPSEVI) event, which has offered us a double opportunity, to learn and enrich ourselves with successful experiences that are applied in other cities or territories, but also show the good work that is done in our city and that, without a doubt, has contributed enormously to the fact that our city has not had fatal traffic accidents since 2007.

I want this congress to be of interest both for professionals in citizen security, as well as for people who work in the field of mobility and also for the population in general, because administrations and people, together, we can make cities safer and more sustainable .
